Look! QUICK-ON QUICK-OFF

If you pride yourself on having all the up to date answers on modern farming you should be familiar with the many advantages of MM Quick-On-Quick-Off cultivator and planting attachments. Built to fit MM Universal tractor, MM cultivators are made in two, four and six row sizes. To convert from two to four row the outside frame and gang are simply swung out. Adjustment up to 44 inches for wide row spacing is made by merely loosening the clamps and sliding the gangs along the square frame bars. The Quick-On-Quick-Off cultivators have high clearance and are available with hand or power lift. A choice of sweeps, shovels or spring tooth attachments, for both front and rear gangs. MM tractors the operator has full operating visibility and is seated comfortably low in the rear of drive wheels for added SAFETY. For precision planting the cultivator may be changed over to a drill planter by the removal of the cultivator shanks and mounting the planting attachments on the cultivator frame. When the job is finished, the tractor can at once be used for other jobs, since Quick-On-Quick-Off tools are easily removed. MM offers a complete line of these tools for more profitable farming in any territory. Many parts of MM Quick-On-Quick-Off units are interchangeable, saving you money because you buy less equipment to handle all the jobs. MM Cultivators are now embarked on a new program of specialized sales. Special four and six row cultivators for "2" and "3" Tractors available for narrow row crops such as beans and corn.

The Ship's On Fire!

THE MOST FLUENT weeping we ever remember to have seen was that of a burning ship. It was in the days of our first school life when the teachers of the one-room institution carried all the grades and heard all the lessons from "ab" to "immateriality" included the history, geography, arithmetic and a little grammar.

It was on Friday afternoons that we "said speeches" as a finishing phase of our education. From the youngest to the oldest in the school all took regular times in the recitations. Stella Gibson, almost a grown girl, was the most eloquent and tearful. She had come from "way-off" and possessed a higher degree of appreciation for the beautiful. Her favorite Friday afternoon recitation inevitably carried an element of pathos. We believe she must have been about at the "puppy love" age, else why would she want to weep about everything? (We've been there in later years.)

And Stella always broke down when she recited "Casablanca." If you recognize the word, it is a poem which had to do with a ship in which was to burn with a burning ship. In which, as we now recall, fire had broken out which threatened the lives of all on board. The first words read:

The boy stood on the burning deck,
Whence all but him had fled;
The flames that lit the battle wreck
Shone round him over the dead.
Yet beautiful and bright he stood,
As born to rule the storm;
A creature of heroic blood,
A proud though child-like form.

In the picture, the boy had been flinching for the voice of his father, unaware that the father had already perished in the flames. Calling to that gallant father for the final word which never came.

There came a burst of thunder sound:
The boy's "oh!" where was he?
Ask of the winds that far around
With fragments filled the sea.

With mast and helm, and pennon
That well had done their part—
But the noblest thing that perished there
Was that young and faithful heart!

And it was at this point that Stella always pulled her handkerchief, and the rest of Mrs. Plumb's students began to shed tears.

The memory of this is brought back to us by recent political incidents, if you know what we mean. The old ship of State (Democracy in the South) had gone to sleep and a dead calm reigned on the bay. Suddenly fire breaks out, and nervous men are jumping here and there leaving the ship to destruction. Men who ought to be strong enough to stand fire, are jumping into the wide ocean of discord. Some few there be who dare to stand, and we admire their bravery. There, for instance, is old Ed Rivers, who sticks to the burning ship, and bares his breast to the flames. Why does he dare? A wise-cracker who paraphrased some of the lines quoted above has made them read:

"The boy stood on the burning deck
Eating goobers by the peck!"
The flames rolled on; he would not run
Because he loved them goobers so."

Well, it's better to stand for a reason, than to flee without a reason.

BUREAU FARMERS TO SELECT STOCK

Members of Denmark Body Plan Agreement Upon The Matter of Proper Breeds

A source of breeding stock for the desired hogs will be established in the Denmark community if the Farm Bureau can do anything about it. Plans were made Tuesday night to get one member or more to keep pure-bred Spotted Poland China hogs. Duree Jersey hogs and Hampshire hogs.

For many years the livestock farmers in that organization have gone to other communities or other sections to procure their breeding stock. The Denmark group will initiate a plan for support each meeting that is comparatively new in the Farm Bureau, picnic lunches each time. This picnic lunch system is supposed to eliminate some dish washing and make it possible for all members to attend the entire meeting each time.

E. G. Westbrock, extension tobacco specialist, Athens, met with the Brooklet Farm Bureau Tuesday night. The discussions on tobacco growing, blue mold control and insects lasted until 11 p. m. The some 100 present gave every indication of still being interested in tobacco.

Army Recruiters Team-Up In Drive
The Georgia National Guard, striving to fill its ranks before summer camp time in July, has enlisted the aid of one of the greatest man-power sales organizations in the history of the world—the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Service.

Following a recent meeting of all station and sub-station recruits, the Georgia National Guard, Adjutant General Alpha A. Fowler Jr. announced that Regular Army recruiters will now serve as "man-power advisors" to National Guard commanders in each of the forty-three Georgia cities possessing a unit.

The first combined project, he said, would be Army Day observances throughout the state April 6 which will serve to kick-off an intensive drive for men in a determined effort to raise the strength of the Georgia National Guard, both air and ground, to about 10,000. The present Guard, largest in Georgia's history, numbers about 5,500.

Gen. Fowler said the state will issue special service ribbons to all Guardsmen in each unit "either doubling its present strength or reaching full authorized strength" before July.
